

controlling message center globally

It would be nice to have a way to control the Message Center panel from being displayed at a global level. This could be handled by a DOPTs change or something. Our company has hundreds of users who utilize BMC catalog manager. Rather than have everyone manually change their settings to hide messages, it would be nice to control the default at a company level.

thanks,
Mark