

Search functionality when creating Derived Systems

Since there is no search capability while building or editing the derived systems, here is a proposed way to improve the user experience with creating and editing derived systems:

- add the icon for the system type to allow the user the ability to see the system type when a cluster and host have the same name
- add a search capability when selecting derived systems, rather than having the user scroll through the list
- add a regular expression capability for adding systems to the derived systems when creating or editing
